Contributions For Health

Wartime America has been lucky in the matter of health, but its good luck is no accident. Health authorities have been vigilant and active. Many physicians have done the normal work of two or three men. In spite of government control, a food supply almost normal in quantity and nutrient value, and only slightly curtailed in variety and quality, has been kept within reach of all.

But our health authorities must continue to be vigilant and industrious, and the country must continue to give them its support wherever possible. One opportunity for such support is found in the 26th annual Christmas sale of the National Tuberculosis association.

The association may take a share of credit for the fact that our tuberculosis death rate declined slightly in the past year. But other, less encouraging figures reveal that the death rate rose in 21 industrial states. This rise is due to such factors as crowded or poor housing, long hours of hard work, and insufficient rest.

To combat the rise, the association cooperates with public and private health agencies, maintains clinics and public health nursing and consulting services, and carries on rehabilitation work and mass industrial X-raying. This last activity is doing much to discover unsuspected tuberculosis in the early, readily curable stage.

In this country the agency entrusted with all this work is the Columbiana County Public Health league, which is financed by the sale of Christmas Seals. Its work in the last year has commanded a great deal of attention and respect, but how far it can go in the coming year to further its great program depends upon the sale of the little seals. The war should not make us forget that our modest contributions are still needed in the conquest of a disease that has taken more American lives since Pearl Harbor than have been lost in battle.

Heaven Help The Experts

The experts are secretly red-faced again over the unexpected turn of events in the battle of the Rhine. They were satisfied in their own minds that it wasn't going to happen that way at all.

There is, of course, something to be said in defense of experts, who have been more sinned against in this war than sinning. To the extent that they were bona fide students and not imposters, they made all their predictions in line with what happened in former wars.

Thus, they were forced to do their stuff under a heavy handicap, because the most prominent characteristic of this war has been its innovation and departures from the usual. The Russians, notoriously bad fighters, suddenly were astonishingly good fighters. The Germans, who were believed ready to "sail against England," didn't embark. The Japanese, who were supposed to be pitifully weak in the air, turned out to be unexpectedly strong. The famous Gen. Mud, one of the experts' old reliables, was unable to stop determined armies. Gen. Winter, another standby, also fell down. New techniques on land, on sea and in the air popped up all over the place.

In the years to come, a new generation of experts will study what happened this time and be equipped to base their predictions on it next time. And in the meantime, heaven help the experts in a war like this. They have been wrong so often that the way to know what is going to happen is to follow them closely, but to believe the opposite of what they say.

An Impression of 1940

Eleanor Roosevelt has gone to considerable trouble in her newspaper writings to report what it was exactly that her husband said in 1940 about sending Americans to fight outside the United States. Her account shows that with one exception Mr. Roosevelt took pains in his campaign speeches to explain that in case of attack his promise would be suspended, and on that exceptional occasion, the Boston speech, the context showed he was speaking only of defense, not of what would happen if the United States were attacked. But Mrs. Roosevelt, like so many others, has missed the point. She is concerned with words, to the exclusion of impressions. In 1940, the American people were apprehensive of the coming of war. They sought reassurance Mr. Roosevelt, running for reelection to a precedent-breaking third term, gave them as much reassurance as he dared; it was a keystone of his campaign. Like his Democratic predecessor, Woodrow Wilson, he lent himself easily to the public's wishful thinking that reelection of the party in power somehow would keep the United States out of war. That was good politics in 1940.

Subsequent events have made it clear that Mr. Roosevelt must have known—and by his own admission—that it would have been more candid and more honest in his 1940 campaign had he told the people that he saw war coming and was even then taking the steps which he claimed credit for in his 1944 campaign to be prepared for it.

At Public Expense

The current trend of Washington guessing is toward a 100 percent increase in social security deductions from workers' pay checks after next Jan. 1. Apparently, the only congressman in either party who is willing to stand up and fight for keeping the deductions where they are now is Sen. Vandenberg of Michigan—and he can't do it alone. President Roosevelt is against him, the Democratic leaders are against him.

If social security deductions increase 100 percent, as the Roosevelt administration insists they should, the extra $1,500,000,000 milked from workers' pay checks will be added to the government's spending. Its place in the social security reserves will be represented by government bonds. The net effect of this trick with public money is to collect an additional billion and a half dollars in taxes from working people, spend an additional billion and a half without specific authorization and, ultimately, to collect another billion and a half to pay back the billion and a half which was handled as current income, instead of as part of a public trust fund.

The plan to do this was not mentioned during the presidential campaign. Apparently, it was part of the unspecified mandate which the administration received at the polls. It is now prepared to subtract another billion and a half dollars from wage earners' incomes, unless Sen. Vandenberg, who has been leading the fight in congress to keep social security taxes from rising, suddenly finds support.

The Stars Say

For Sunday, November 26

SUNDAY'S horoscope is a conflicting one, with obstacles and frustrations, with difficulty in overcoming such, except by some novel or unique sort of change, radical and far reaching. This might be more successfully put over by strategem and intuitive leads rather than force or strenuous attack. Go slow along lines of east resistance. Domestic and romantic affairs may be adversely affected. Safeguard funds, personal confidences or intrigues against loss or sorrow.

Those whose birthday it is may have a modicum of success by meeting obstacles with shrewdness and sagacity rather than force or aggression. In personal affairs, domestic, sentimental or business, make few changes and work along lines of least resistance. Shun domestic or affectional squabbles.

A child born on this day should be talented, skillful and ambitious with favors from those in important positions. But its affectional affiliations are not happily affected. Use intuition, amiability and cleverness and not aggression.

For Monday, November 27

Monday's astrological forecast is for a particularly lively and eventful state of affairs, in which the aims and interests of youth may be uppermost. It is likely there may be gay travel, change, communications and celebrations, with more enjoyment than profit. However, all pertaining to writings, publicity, promotion and public affiliations should prosper. Refrain from show and bravado.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a very lively and enjoyable year, with all pertaining to youth and its highest objectives moving along at gay tempo. This might be in relation to festive occasions. Literary or artistic agreements should be under happy auspices. Travel, change, contracts may be successfully engineered. Shun extravagances and show.

A child born on this day may be exceptionally versatile and talented, and could carve a successful career with its pen or brush. It would have fine ideals and intuition, reaching advanced channels in drama, fiction or romantic art.

Traffic Jam A-Brewing

We don't know what's become of the man with the flag who used to start 'em off in the 500-mile race at Indianapolis. And we don't know how the New York subway guards like their work during rush hours. But we can pass along to them a tip on some good jobs opening up after the war that could use their special talents.

New York's Mayor La Guardia has announced that a projected new airport in his city will eventually handle 300 flights an hour—or five a minute. Maybe His Honor could use a few good traffic cops, too.

It's Christmas shopping season—when the book with the most unhappy ending will be dad's check book.

Your Pet Habits Discussed

BY LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
SOME DAY I am going to make a list of the habits that many thousands of men and women indulge in and that have been said by some long faced prophets of doom are bad for you.

The only reason I don't do it today is that I haven't time. It will be a long list and I will need a dictionary and plenty of memory prodding.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

It will start alphabetically with alcohol, of course. That is really a debatable subject. Then it will go on to bathing, cigarettes, candy, coffee, finally getting down to meat, tobacco and ending up at the foot of the alphabet, with sucking the thumbs.

Faddists' Statements
Of course some of these are debatable, as I say, as health habits. But the real reason for the warning is a deep rooted feeling in many people's minds that anything anyone enjoys is ipso facto and automatically bad for you. They don't want you to do anything that they themselves do not enjoy. These croakers have no scientific data on which to base their statements.

When you take time to pin them down and ask them for a reasonable account of their objections they usually reply something in the line of "they say," or they recite the terrible example of some person who did one or the other of these things and died. Well, lots of people die who have not had any habits to speak of at all except to get up in the morning and go to work and come home and go to bed at night.

Every once in a while some bloke passes on and his friends say in awed whispers he never used to bacco or beer or wine or was seen in night clubs and for once the funeral sermon can be literally true.

Take, for instance, the subject of coffee. The objectors say it is a drug. All right, that does not necessarily condemn it. A drug is simply a chemical that is not a food and not found regularly as part of the chemistry of the human body. It may be good or it may be bad. Just calling it a drug does not necessarily condemn it.

The worst that can be said for coffee is that it keeps one awake. What of it? Lots of people would be better off awake. Contrary to all argument it is a simple fact, provable by the simplest physiologic experiment, that coffee does not raise blood pressure. It does not harm the heart. On the contrary for elderly hearts it is beneficial. Its drug action is to dilate the blood vessels of the heart, kidneys and brain. (That's why it keeps you awake). And if it dilates blood vessels it brings more blood through them, and blood nourishes, so it actually nourishes the heart. Those are the plain medical facts about coffee. Of course if you overdo it, that is another question.

Again as to meat. The prejudice against meat is as mysterious as it is terrific. The vegetarians foster it. Yet there was once a treatment for disease, a way of keeping healthy, that had for its basis the eating of meat alone, and eschewing vegetables. It was called the Salisbury steak and the name Salisbury steak was named after its founder. And so far as I know the devotees of the Salisbury treatment were just as healthy and lived just as long as the vegetarians. They claimed it took a great load off the stomach, liver and bowels and digestion generally and was good for those people who had habitually overloaded themselves with cabbage and straw and beets and garden truck.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
J. W.: — I just found I had a mitral murmur. What effects would this have on my health? I am 31 years old.
Answer: Many people with mitral trouble live busy, happy, useful lives for many years. You should probably select sedentary employment and go a little easy on strenuous exercise. Otherwise there is no treatment in the quiescent stage of the trouble.

A B-29 BOMBER
COSTS $600,000

Remember the thrill when this famous bomber made its first great raid on Japan's steel center? Well, a lot more B-29s are needed to finish the job. And that's where your War Bonds come in!

YES, only bombs and shells make any impression on Japanese minds. So before this war is won we've got to blast them with more than they can possibly take. Sure, it's going to be expensive. But that's what this 6th War Bond Drive is for—to provide money for the B-29s, the battleships and transports and tank landing boats that will ram this war right back down the Japs' throats. Your part is to buy at least one extra $100 War Bond and more if you can. So make the greatest investment of your life . . .

You Gotta Think Quick

By STANLEY PALEY Copyright, 1944, NEA Service, Inc.

XXXVI
She was very pale. And as beautiful as she'd ever been. I sat down on the bed beside her and there was a terrific lump in my throat and a burning back of my eyes. For awhile we just held hands because I couldn't trust myself to speak. Finally I heard my voice a million miles away.
"It's going to be all right, Mickey," I said.
Her lips moved, but no sound came. She looked at me and I looked at her. I realized then that she knew and that there was very little time left. I bent over and kissed her close and put my cheek against hers. And I wanted to say, "Don't leave me, Mickey, please. Don't leave me. I need you so badly, but I couldn't."
This is it. Father, the fire and the hell you used to talk about. I can't stand it! Now she's leaving me. She's trying to comfort me instead of me comforting her. We should never have met, Mickey, on that dusty, sun-drenched road. I should have picked up the first hitch-hiker. Maybe it would have been I prayed.
How does it go again? I shall. The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want. He maketh me to lie down in green pastures; He leadeth me beside the still waters. He restoreth my soul; He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for His name's sake. Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil; for Thou art with me. Why art thou so still, Mickey, darling? Mickey!
I kissed her lips. They were still warm. Then I closed her eyes and brushed the tousled lock away from them.
I don't know how long I sat there. Suddenly the nurse was standing beside me. She gently uncupped my hand from the one I was holding and helped me to my feet.
"Here, drink this, Mr. Kabateck," I drank the stuff down. There was just one thought in my mind. One single thought.
"The police are waiting in the office to see you," the nurse continued, "and then you should get some rest."
"Yes," I repeated dully. "The police."
Like an automaton I walked out the door, along the corridor, down the stairs and along another corridor. The police could wait.
Outside I had started to drizzle. I turned up the collar of my coat and hailed a cab.
"Columbus Towers," I said. "As fast as you can."
When we got there I asked the driver to wait and hurried up to the apartment. I opened the top drawer. First I took out the fat envelope addressed to the F. B. I. and put it on the dresser. If I didn't come back they'd find it all right. Then I shoved the gun and the key to the warehouse in my pocket.
Bogale was there, just as I thought. After I'd opened the door I saw the light upstairs. He must have heard the door creek because he came out and walked to the head of the circular staircase. There was panic in his voice.
"Anybody there?"

My heart was pounding like a sledgehammer. Again he called out. "Who's there?"
A flashlight played from the top gallery and swept across the dim warehouse. It didn't catch me because I was standing at the foot of the stairs, hidden in the shadow. I pulled out the gun. "It's quite simple," he'd once said. "You release the safety catch and that's all there is to it." I released the safety catch and for a moment my hand trembled.
I heard him start down the wooden stairs, each step reverberating through the stillness. Step. Step. Step. He was coming closer and closer.
Slowly I extended my hand and the trembling stopped. My hand was steady now, and as one with the gun in it.

WAR DEPARTMENT
Washington, D. C.
May 5, 1943

PERSONAL
FROM: Maj. Lawrence Conway
TO: Capt. Steven M. Grant
SUBJECT: Sgt. Leo Kabateck
Dear Steve:

I have read the manuscript which Sergeant Kabateck gave you for safe-keeping when your company arrived in Australia and thank you for having sent it to me. It may interest you to hear that upon finishing it my curiosity was aroused regarding the outcome of the shooting of Bogale. From the records, I was able to obtain I learned that Kabateck gave himself up to the police and was later tried and acquitted.

Since your last letter, the citations and medals you recommended for your men for their gallantry in the Buna action have either been awarded to them or sent to their next of kin.
However, the Distinguished Service Cross you asked for Sergeant Kabateck remained here because we could not find anyone to send it to. As you mentioned, he had no relatives.

Per awhile I was in a quandary regarding the disposition to make of the decoration, but since reading the manuscript a solution presented itself.

Last week I had occasion to go to New York. I made inquiries at several hospitals and finally located the one I was looking for. I am sure you will be pleased to know that the information I requested was available and that the Distinguished Service Cross awarded posthumously to Sgt. Leo Kabateck now rests on the grave of the girl he called "Mickey."
Best regards,
Larry

Advices Parents to Keep Ailing Youngsters Home

STATE COLLEGE, Pa.—Parents who send their children to school when they show signs of illness may have dangerous rewards along with a cherished perfect attendance record. This is the opinion of Dr. J. P. Ritenour of Pennsylvania State college. Pointing to the many serious diseases—infantile paralysis, tonsillitis, and rheumatic fever—which frequently start with vague body pains, Dr. Ritenour urges that parents consider such symptoms as warning signals and not mere old-fashioned "growing pains."
With any indications of illness, the child should be kept at home, and should not be allowed to attend classes and possibly infect other children. Teachers, too, Dr. Ritenour warns, must watch for symptoms among students, and send the doubtful cases home promptly.

ZOO MOURNS 'JENNY' ITS LAZY PELICAN

NEW YORK—After an undistinguished and blameless life, "Old Jenny," a pelican of uncertain age and no ambition, died in her winter quarters in the Bronx zoo.
"Old Jenny," which arrived in 1904, was the second oldest zoo inhabitant being antedated only by Pete, a hippopotamus, born in 1903.

PASSENGERS IN THE DUMPS

SOUTH PACIFIC—Nine Seabees, stationed on a south Pacific isle, borrowed a truck to ride to a chicken dinner offered by a hospitable native family that lived on a mountain top. On the way back in the dark, the driver had trouble coming down the steep road and for a time was puzzled by the unfamiliar arrangement of brake and clutch pedals, but soon mastered them. Hearing his mates yell, the driver stuck his head out to inquire if anyone wanted to get off. He found only three of his original eight passengers still aboard. He was operating a dump truck.

THRIFTY SCOTS PLAN TO REAP SLEAVED

EDINBURGH—A Scottish Sea-weed Research Association has been founded under auspices of the Supply Ministry and the Scottish Council of Industry, to investigate the commercial possibilities of seaweed. On its work depends to a great extent the future of the crofters of the Scottish Highlands.

The association will have a biological division, an engineering section with a ship equipped to examine deep sea weeds and the best methods of harvesting them, and a chemical division to determine how best to extract the chemical constituents.

SMUGGLER IN JUG

GREENOCK, Scotland—A Chinese seaman was sentenced to four months in prison for importing into Britain nine pounds of opium, enough in the judge's opinion, "to stock a good den."

Lisbon Pilot Tells Of Rough Treatment As German Prisoner

LISBON, Nov. 25.—Back from a German prison camp, First Lieut. Earl Brawminger, 23, of S. Jefferson st., says briefly: "We got pretty rough treatment from the Germans."

The Lisbon bomber pilot—who was reported missing in action—was captured in a raid over the Ploesti oil field in Romania. "We dropped bomb after bomb and scores of oil tanks were in flames. We were flying a P-38 twin engine fighter plane. I was co-pilot and Robert Zimmer was pilot on this mission but we changed positions." "We scored our direct hits before the Nazis got on our tail," he continued. "They had us in a pocket and our ship was in bad shape. Finally, the whole crew bailed out. I was the last one."

Armistice Frees Him

Lieut. Brawminger, landed in Bulgaria and was sent to a German prison camp. When Russia entered the country and an armistice was signed, he was released.

The Lisbon airman was born in Detroit. His parents are deceased and he visited Mr. and Mrs. Ray Lewis here before going to Miami Beach, Fla. He came to Lisbon six years ago. Entering the air corps July 18, 1942, he trained at Kelley field, Tex., graduating in November, 1943, as a second lieutenant.

He was later transferred to Topeka, Kan. He received an assignment to fly a Liberator four-engine bomber to Joyeaux, Italy.

He was promoted to first lieutenant while overseas. He wears the Purple Heart, Distinguished Flying Cross and Air medal and has received a Presidential citation.

OWNER — DEALER PARTNERSHIP ESSENTIAL TO GOOD SERVICE TO KEEP YOUR CAR SERVING FOR THE DURATION AND MANY MONTHS AFTER

Between the two of us, we've got a real job to do—to protect your car's performance until it can be replaced. The next year is the most critical in your car's life.
It's important you be more watchful for even slight irregularities in performance. It's equally important that we contribute everything possible to insure continuance of your dependable transportation. This makes it a partnership job.
In our Service Department, we are keenly alert to our responsibilities, doing everything possible, in spite of some war-time handicaps, to keep you well satisfied. At times, because of some manpower shortage, we may not be able to do as fast a job but—we guarantee the work will be in keeping with high mechanical standards—genuine parts will be used. Inspection will be there.

MEMORIAL SERVICE

We have given much thought, as to what we could do to help and assist those who are bereaved for some member of the Armed Forces, who has lost his life in action.

Our thought is to offer the use of our Memorial to the public for a Memorial Service for their loved ones.

Relatives desiring this service can make arrangements by calling or stopping in, at which time all details can be explained.

Much thought and investigating has been given this service and we feel that in this manner we can assist those who are in doubt as to what procedure to complete a Memorial best suited for each individual.

A Memorial Service is something that will become nation-wide in its scope, as it is offered to the public, as time passes, as it is one way the family can express their appreciation, for the many thoughts that under ordinary conditions, and in general contact will never be expressed. Since all of us, the public, are very grateful for all the effort made by our boys, it seems we are very expressionless in our explanation when sorrow comes to a family.

To attend a service of this type is a lasting memory and will be greatly appreciated.

Yours for the asking.

Canadian Soldiers Protest New Draft

VERNON, B. C., Nov. 25.—Soldiers from the Vernon Military camp paraded four abreast through Vernon for an hour last night in the first anti-conscription demonstration in Canada by uniformed men since the government was authorized Thursday to send drafted home defense troops overseas.

Estimates of their strength ranged from 300 to 900. Shouting "down with conscription" and "conscript wealth and industry as well as manpower," the demonstrators threatened to tear down Vernon's new Canadian Legion hall.

The demonstration was finally broken up by military police and city patrolmen at the end of a "meeting of protest" in a Vernon park. There were no arrests. Ninety per cent of the soldiers stationed in the area of Vernon, 200 miles northeast of Vancouver, are draftees. The parade was the first public indication of the sentiment of the Canadian 6th division, which Ottawa spokesmen have indicated will be among the first group of home defense troops to be sent overseas to reinforce the volunteers.

STRAIGHT TALK

ABOUT THE

SIXTH WAR LOAN DRIVE

AS WE MOVE closer to victory, it wouldn't be surprising if you were saying to yourself—"What's the big idea of asking for all this additional money now? Isn't the war almost over?"

No sir, it is not! Not by a long shot. Of course, for many months now you've heard mostly about the war with Germany, where our greatest effort is concentrated. That's why many people have the idea that the war's practically over.

But make no mistake about it—nothing could be farther from the truth! The Japanese war is a tremendous undertaking, and victory will come high. We'll have to fight every inch of the way.

Everything Costs More—in the Pacific War

The European war is expensive, but almost everything in the Pacific war will cost more. Take transport costs, for instance: Because of the longer distances, the same amount of freight costs 25 per cent more when shipped to the South Pacific than to Europe. And it takes twice as many cargo ships in the Pacific to support a task force of a given size because turn-around time is twice as great!

More Planes . . . Tanks . . . Ships . . . Oil

In addition, we shall need more of everything. More B-29 Superfortresses that cost $600,000 each. More P-47 Thunderbolts that cost $50,000 each. More M-4 Tanks, with bulldozer blades, that cost $67,417 each. More amphibious tanks —more aircraft carriers—more supply ships—more gasoline and oil than it took for the invasion of Europe!

Care for the Sick and Wounded

And lest anyone forget, we shall need more battalion aid stations—more clearing stations—more evacuation hospitals—more convalescent hospitals—more hospital ships.

For many, many years the sick, wounded, and otherwise disabled veterans will require medical attention and care. That's the least Uncle Sam can do in appreciation of what they've done for us.

Maintenance for Millions

Did you ever stop to think how much money it costs to maintain the 11 to 12 million men and women in our army and navy? Whether the men are actually fighting or not, they must be fed, housed, transported from one training center or battle area to another, cared for in a hundred and one different ways. That all costs money and will continue to until the last man demobilized is back in civilian clothes.

In addition, millions of dollars will be required for mustering-out pay, for various benefits and services voted by Congress to help the boys get started in civilian life.

These are reasons enough why patriotic Americans will want to buy heavily during the Sixth War Loan. But here are still more

Winning the Peace—for Your Country

If we're to win the peace as well as the war, the cost of living must be kept down and the purchasing power of money preserved. A reckless inflation that would necessarily be followed by the catastrophe of deflation—with its unemployment, bankruptcies, misery and heartache—must be prevented at all cost.

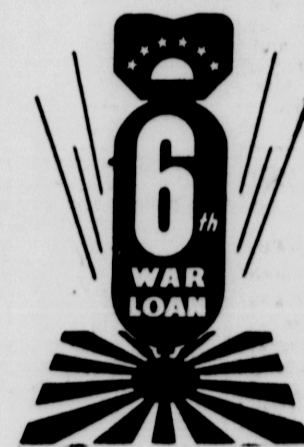

Let's make no mistake—a dangerous period lies ahead. The American people have nothing to fear, however, if they show in the future the same common sense they have shown in the past, and continue to put every penny over rock-bottom expenses into the purchase of more and more War Bonds.

Winning the Peace—for Yourself

Want another important reason? Yourself! There isn't a better or safer investment in the world today than War Bonds. In helping your country, you are also helping yourself! Never in our entire history has it been so necessary to save as right now. We'll need money, individually, for education, repairs, replacements, retirement—and we'll need a lot of it.

As you can see there are many reasons, important reasons, why our Government must have the financial support of everyone, and have it for many months to come.

Let all Americans do their part—for their own sake, for their country's.

Booster Club Arranges Final Plans For Dec. 11 Grid Fete

Ticket Sale To Begin Next Week With Members Only Restriction Until December 4

Tickets to the annual Salem High school football banquet, to be held at the Memorial building, Monday night, Dec. 11, with Alvin R. "Bo" McMillin, Indiana University football mentor, as speaker, will go on sale to Booster club members early next week. It was decided at a meeting of the club in the Memorial building last night.

Sponsoring their third annual banquet in honor of the Quaker football team, the Boosters announced at the meeting that approximately 260 tickets would be available for Booster members during the first week of the sale.

The second week, should tickets still be available, sale will be opened to the general public and Boosters who desire more than one ticket. The price has been set at $2, the same as the dinner last year when Paul Brown, Ohio State coach, spoke.

Although there are 334 Booster club members this year—142 more than there were in 1942—the club officials said they expected some tickets to be available to the general public, as many Boosters do not attend.

Ticket Distributors
Tickets can be purchased downtown from Art Brian, Jim Primm and Joe Kelley, Marty Polder, Pete Sanders, Harold Parker and Wilbur Vignon have been appointed to take charge of the sale in factories. Sanders and Polder will distribute tickets at the Deming plant, Parker at Mullins and Vignon at Bliss. Other plants will be taken care of accordingly, Kelley said.

James Gregg and Don Beattie were named to arrange the program for the affair and Jim Primm was appointed chairman of the specialties of the evening's entertainment. Plans of the club include the "treating" of some 40 members of the High school varsity squad, including the managers and coaches. Coach Ben Barrett will present letters and reserve numerals to these players.

Kelley also announced that Don Harvey's orchestra had offered its services to furnish music for the occasion.

Famous Coach
McMillin, a famed after-dinner speaker and dean of the Big Ten college coaches, has piloted Indiana grid aggregations since 1934 and has piled up an enviable record since his college days as a star at Center College. He was famous in college as the captain of the "Prayin' Colonels" who defeated the then top Harvard outfit, 7-0, for the upset of the season two decades ago.

The Hooster mentor will speak in Salem while on a tour of several district schools in quest of some top-notch material for his future elevens. He is now known—as a take-off from his younger days—as the "Grayin' Colonel."

"By Jove! This Basketball Is Amazing Thing"—So Say the English

(By Associated Press)
MANCHESTER, ENGL., Nov. 25—Manchester residents have seen their first American basketball game and are reported to rate the sport as "an admirable medium of grace, speed and skill."

A U. S. quartermaster outfit beat a Merchant Navy quintet 36-11, and another Quartermaster five beat an Ordnance team 37-36.

The Manchester Guardian's reporter wrote:

"A side that has just scored is particularly vulnerable if they are unwise enough to indulge, even for a split second, in self-contemplation."

"Running with the ball and bouncing it demands exceptionally clever handwork and at times one got the impression that the ball was being controlled by one finger."

"The shooting from all angles, calls for supreme body control. Most diverting of all is the ability of the guards or backs in particular to look in one direction and pass in the other."

G. I. Basketball Coach Lasts 37 Short Minutes

KEESLER FIELD, Miss.—Capt. Lee C. Sonedeker of Portland, Ore., can tell his overseas buddies that he was coach of Keesler Field's basketball team—for exactly 37 minutes.

The Keesler Field athletic training center named Capt. Sonedeker head basketball mentor 37 minutes before his overseas assignment was received from the War Department. He was a basketball star at Washington State college.

MIKE TURNESA TOP IN PORTLAND OPEN

"Forgotten Man" Turns In Low Card On Wet Links; Passes Sam Snead

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 25—The forgotten man of the tournament, Mike Turnesa of White Plains, N. Y., was leading the Portland Open today as a crack field of professionals and amateurs teed off in the third round of the 72-hole open, $15,500 War Bonds event.

Mike, one of seven Turnesa brothers of the links, was completely overlooked when the firing started two days ago. Less spectacular than many of his fellow pros, he put together the two most consistent rounds for a 36-hole total of 142 and the No. 1 position in the parade.

Heavy footing underneath and greens made tricky by water failed to affect Turnesa's game. He racked up a 36-35-71 first round to lead second place. Identical nine hole scores yesterday enabled him to pass the opening day's leader, Sam Snead of Hot Springs, Va.

Snead Second

Snead, just out of the Navy and the main attraction of the tournament, trailed Turnesa by two shots as he went into third round. After a two under par 70 for the first day, Slammin' Sam lost his putting touch yesterday to take a 74 for a 36-hole total of 144.

Only Turnesa had shaded the par figures (35-37-72) at the halfway mark and Snead had equaled it.

Behind these two were Zell Eaton, long time competitor, seldom winner, now registered from Los Angeles, and Harry Bassler, chunky Calver City, Calif., entry. Eaton's efforts resulted in 72-73-145 while Bassler coupled a pair of 73's for his 146.

Byron Nelson of Toledo, O., biggest money winner of the year and twice a former National champion, had a 36-hole total of 147. He shared the spot with Denny Shute of Akron, O., one time British open winner as well as a twice P.G.A. title holder; Jack Gage, slim little Santa Barbara player who recently turned amateur crown; and Willie Goggin, White Plains, N. Y.

The field was trimmed to the low scoring 51 pros and 28 amateurs for the last two rounds, the final eighteen to be played Sunday.

HERE'S WHY NAVY WILL TAKE CADETS, SAYS OLD FILBERT

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—Kenesaw Mountain Landis, 78, commissioner of organized baseball since 1921, died at St. Luke's hospital at 5:35 a. m. C. W. T. today.

Landis' death at St. Luke's hospital followed an illness of about seven weeks. He entered the hospital on Oct. 2, suffering from a severe cold and went to the hospital for a rest and physical checkup.

Last night his physician reported his condition as "low" but there was no indication later during the night and early morning hours that death was imminent.

Members of his family were at his bedside when he died. The immediate cause of his death was not announced but since entering the hospital he had suffered a heart attack.

The death of the white-haired, colorful baseball chief ended the career of one of the country's outstanding sports leaders.

His hospitalization prevented him for the first time in his almost 24 years as commissioner from attending a World Series, his physician advising that he not go to St. Louis for the annual fall classic.

Death After Birthday

His death came just one week and a day after a major league baseball committee had recommended that at the expiration of his current term on Jan. 12, 1946, he be re-elected for a seven year term. He observed his 78th birthday last Monday.

Mrs. Landis, who also had been confined to the hospital having recently suffered a fractured wrist, and Leslie M. O'Connor, his secretary, were at his bedside when the end came.

O'Connor announced that in compliance with Landis' wishes, no funeral services would be held.

During his tenure as commissioner of baseball, Landis ruled the national sport with an iron hand, calling into play his years of experience as a jurist, including a term that gained him national prominence on the Federal court bench. Into his rulings went years of intimate relationships with baseball, as an ardent fan, as an intimate of players, managers and club owners, and as an idol of the fans who wanted only fair play in dealings between clubs.

Result of Hard Work

Physicians explained his physical setback as the result of hours of hard labor in a victory garden, and in the spacious yards, at the new home he purchased for his family last summer. They said he "was working too hard," and when he contracted a cold prevailed upon him to enter a hospital for a rest.

But even hospitalized, he could not miss the 1944 World Series and a radio was by his side as the Browns and Cardinals fought for the world title.

Landis came under fire because of his iron-handed rule at the major league All-Star game in Pittsburgh July 11, 1944. But major league club owners paid no attention to rumors circulating of his possible end as baseball's high commissioner.

Reappointed This Year

Instead, they appointed a committee to meet on baseball policy in Chicago Nov. 17, 1944, and it was then, while Landis still was hospitalized, they gave him a vote of confidence by recommending he be re-elected for another seven-year term to the office he had served so well for almost 25 years.

Their recommendation virtually assured that Landis would be returned for another term of baseball—the game he had loved and fought for almost two and a half decades, the game that had made him one of the most noted and picturesque figures of everyday American life.

In New York, Ford Frick, president of the National league, said: "It is a great shock to me."

Frick, former newspaperman, was closely associated with Landis for many years.

Columbiana Is Formidable Foe In District Cage Circles

Don't disregard Columbiana when basketball interest mounts and the cagers begin their annual capers on the hardwoods of this district!

There are nine big reasons for that statement. They are Harry Case, Glen Engle, Don "Chester" Evans, Don Gosney, Harry Hollinger, Lawrence Keek, Keith Laughlin, Bob Hump and Bill Neel. These nine fellows all played basketball last year—in fact, they made up nine of ten men Coach Mearl Atkins 1943-44 Tri-County championship team, which won 16 of 18 regular season games and five of six tourney attempts.

The only men missing from that sensational game-winning squad of last season is Captain Bill Dickinson. The coach, Atkins, is also gone but Columbiana has come up with another talented mentor who turned in one of the best football records the neighboring village has ever posted.

John Cabas, former Mount Union basketball and football star, is now handling the basketball assignment as well as the grid tutoring and his prospects look anything but bad.

Fans of the district will remember last year's outfit, which took all opponents most of them by lopsided scores, except the Salem Quakers, who knocked them off once 47-29 and then again in a benefit game, 53-38.

However, the Quakers will have those two victories to answer for soon. The teams meet on Columbiana's floor in the second encounter of the season for both—Dec. 8.

The Clippers began practice last Tuesday and are well under way to the opening of their 1944-45 season against Fairfield a week from next Tuesday.

The Clippers are booked nine times at home and six away for their 16 game schedule. They will be seeking their second straight Tri-County loop title.

Back from last season's reserve squad are Dick Berryman, Don Kurtz, Bill Poulton, Lee Thomas and Harry McBride. All told there were 50 candidates out for the first practice last week.

The complete Clipper schedule follows:

Tuesday, Dec. 5, Fairfield, here.
Friday, Dec. 8, Salem, here.

Tuesday, Dec. 12, At New Waterford.

enemy planes were shot down, 35 by American planes and seven by anti-aircraft batteries.

"Our own losses were very light," Gen. MacArthur said.

Doing Well On Ground

On the ground the Americans are doing equally well. A headquarters communique said the 32nd Infantry division had crossed the Leyte river below Limon, which fell to the Yanks Wednesday, and was shoving southward. A counterattack by the Japanese 26th division was repulsed, the communique reported.

The blow at the Japanese relief convoy was struck by Thunderbolt and Warhawk fighter planes off Masbate island, about 20 miles north of Leyte. Two transports, of 11,000 and 2,000 tons were sunk, along with the destroyer, and a third 6,000-ton transport was set ablaze and beached. All hands aboard the destroyer were reported to have perished.

American forces systematically were knocking out enemy strong points on an embankment designated as Hill 1525, on the American east flank. In the Minoro area, south of Capocan, Japanese units have been broken up into a series of small groups which are putting up a desperate fight, the communique reported.

advance to Cologne, 25 miles away. Bourheim, two miles southwest of Julich, was cleared completely of the Germans late yesterday, a front dispatch said.

British Second Army troops, after losing Hoven and yielding some ground below Beek, north and east of Gelsenkirchen, held firmly against waves of counterattacking enemy troops and clung firmly to the high ground overlooking Wurm.

The German radio said the allied attack flared with new intensity today between Gelsenkirchen and Julich, with the Americans throwing in heavy new tank formations at Gelsenkirchen.

British Closing In On Maas

In Southeastern Holland the British closing in on the Maas river citadel of Venlo advanced up to 3,000 yards through heavily mined mud flats. Typical of the resistance was one German section that resisted to the last man.

British infantry captured Maashees, 15 miles north of Venlo, and seized the villages of Wanssum and Thier. The British advanced to within 2,000 yards of Gubbenvorst, north of Venlo. Lt. Gen. Sir Miles C. Dempsey's troops were fighting their way into the enemy's major perimeter of defenses before Venlo, and only a thin finger of Germans remained on the western bank of the Maas.

Patton's troops cleared the enemy out of Butzdorf, three miles inside the German border southeast of Luxembourg, and sent a force across the Saar north of Sarrebourg.

Green Calls Conference To Speed War Production

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 25.—William Green, A. F. L. president, climaxed a week of appeals and warnings to labor from persons high in the government today by calling for a war conference of union heads on speeding up production.

Green invited heads of the molders, machinists and electricians unions, and of the textile and garment workers unions, to meet here tomorrow to consider the nature of the emergency.

THE THEATER

Appearing together for the fourth time are Green Garson and Walter Pidgeon, co-starred in "Mrs. Parkington", at the State Sunday through Tuesday.

Edward Arnold, Agnes Moorehead, Cecil Kellaway and Frances Rafferty have supporting roles in the film based on the Louis Bromfield best seller. The story of a Nevada boarding house keeper's daughter who marries a brilliant, flamboyant adventurer and becomes a New York social and financial power is the latest vehicle for the two who starred in "Blossoms in the Dust", "Madame Curie" and "Mrs. Miniver".

Bing Crosby's "Going My Way" plays a return engagement at the State Wednesday.

Abbott and Costello's "Lost in a Harem" brings the pair of comedians Marilyn Maxwell, Jimmy Dorsey and his band, and John Conte to the State Thursday through Saturday.

At the Grand Sunday and Monday are "Sing, Neighbor, Sing" featuring Roy Acuff and his band of radio entertainers with Brad Taylor and Ruth Terry; and Gene Autry's "Big Show".

"Stagecoach", excellent action film which gave John Wayne his first starring role and won acclaim as one of the 10 best films of the year, will be seen at the Grand Tuesday and Wednesday.

The Thursday, Friday and Saturday double bill at the Grand includes "Shadow of Suspicion" with Marjorie Weaver, Peter Cookson and Tim Ryan; and "Riding West", a Charles Starrett action film.

Philadelphia Operators Threaten Phone Strike

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 25.—More than 600 long distance telephone operators voted 10 to 1 last night to go on strike against the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. here if upward wage adjustments are not made within 30 days.

Miss Vera G. Butler, president of Local 302, Federation of Long Lines Telephone Operators, said the voters represented approximately 80 per cent of the membership of the union, which is unaffiliated.

Miss Butler said the union has been negotiating with the company for a $3 weekly wage increase. The company has offered $1, she said.

British Force Foe Back On Italian River Front

ROME, Nov. 25.—Armored British patrols have reached a suburb of Faenza and have forced the Germans to withdraw from their positions along the Cosina river four miles southeast of the Bologna-Rimini highway town. Allied headquarters announced today.

A military spokesman said that this autumn had been the wettest on record in Italy, with most of the fighting fronts veritable quagmires.

ASKS AMMUNITION PRODUCTION BOOST

Eisenhower Says Need Is For 100 Percent Boost Soon As Possible

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—Small arms ammunition plants—cut deeply in production a year ago—buckled down today to a whopping new assignment from Gen. Eisenhower.

His appeal is for a 100 per cent boost in output, as quickly as possible, to maintain the furious pace of the Allies' offensive against Germany.

Promising the need will be met, War Production Board Chairman J. A. Krug announced yesterday that orders to "roughly double" present schedules had been dispatched to 13 plants. They will need approximately 77,000 workers, over and above the 200,000 that must be found for about eight other critical munitions programs.

Krug acknowledged that getting workers back into these plants will be no easy task. Eight of the plants are in acute labor shortage areas where they will compete with other "must" programs.

The sudden demand for a huge production increase—mainly in 30-caliber bullets and machine gun cartridges—results from battle experience on the Western front the last few weeks, Krug told a news conference.

He said Gen. Eisenhower had sent word that this ammunition was being expended at about four times the rate anyone had expected.

Apparently that goes for mortar shells as well. The WPB chief said that program also will have to be "very considerably expanded" soon.

Like heavy artillery and shell production, small arms ammunition output was cut back sharply months ago when the need for a tremendous stockpile was thought to have been met.

Giving some indication of the production boost required, Krug said present output of 30-caliber bullets is about 80,000,000 rounds a month. Doubling this production and that of other small ammunition may take four or five months, he added.

There are about 2,500 species of lizards.

Tears and Laughter In House of Safe Air Ace

MISSOULA, Mont., Nov. 25.—Tears and laughter echoed through the Zenne household last night upon notification that Col. Hubert Zenne of Missoula, leading American ace in Europe who has been missing in action since Oct. 30, was safe and a prisoner of war in Germany.

"We were fearful, then hilariously happy," his pretty, dark-haired wife said.

China Rail Center Thought Jap Prize

CHUNGKING, Nov. 25.—Loss of the Kwangsi-Kweichow railroad town of Hwaiyuanchen, 50 miles west of fallen Luchow, to advancing Japanese troops was strongly indicated today with an announcement by the Chinese high command of both Chinese and Japanese patrol actions west of the town.

Yesterday's American Air force communique said Hwaiyuanchen had been bombed repeatedly by American planes, but a Chinese army spokesman insisted it was still in Chinese hands.

The high command said the Chinese threw back another enemy force northwest of Kungsheng, 40 miles northwest of Kueilin.

(Domei, Japanese news agency, broadcast a front dispatch today saying that the Japanese had driven close to the Kwangsi-Kweichow border, dealing heavy blows to the 19th division of the Chinese 76th army entrenched in the mountainous country. The dispatch said the task of the 19th, commanded by Gen. Hu Tsungnan, was to defend the gateway to Chungking.)

LEAVES FROM A WAR CORRESPONDENT'S NOTEBOOK

by Hal Boyle

WITH THE AEF IN GERMANY—Under the American army's strict non-fraternization rule, the soldiers are forbidden even to speak to German civilians under penalty of fines ranging up to $40 and 60 days.

That is something of a hardship when an occasional civilian, dropping the mask of servility assumed by most Germans, makes a wise crack at the expense of the troops.

But Pvt. Chris Kacoyanis of Somerville, Mass., was equal to the situation. One day during a week-long stalemate in which the Germans held one end of a town and the Americans the other, a young German girl who spoke English stepped up to him pointed at his head and said, jeeringly:

"You know the German people regard the Americans as gang criminals rather than as an army?"

"She said that because of my short haircut," Kacoyanis said later. "Hitler had circulated a lot of pictures showing American convicts and because most of us soldiers had our hair cut short, she was trying to imply we all were from the jailhouse too."

Kacoyanis didn't answer her taunt directly. He just looked the other way and said in a very loud and dignified voice:

"It keeps my head cool—and I don't have to see the barber very much."

Then he marched on past her.

If the German army intelligence hasn't been up to snuff recently, Hitler can blame the cooks of the First Infantry division headquarters.

Capt. Max Zera, who used to teach physical education in New York City high school was passing through the division kitchen when he said the cook basting a number of brown birds.

"What are those?" asked Zera, his mouth watering. "Spring chickens?"

"Spring chickens, hell," reported the cook with pride. "These are German messenger pigeons."

Maj. Edward M. Libert, a combat surgeon of Council Bluffs, Ia., was sitting in his tent one night when a strange officer, mistaking the tent for an engineer outfit's headquarters, stuck his head in and said:

"Please come down the road and pull out a couple of bridges for us."

"We've pulled out everything else for soldiers," replied the surgeon. "but we can't pull out bridges."

Annoyed at the German machine-gunner who sprayed a village street they were cleaning up, two doughboys got even by employing an old Indian warfare trick.

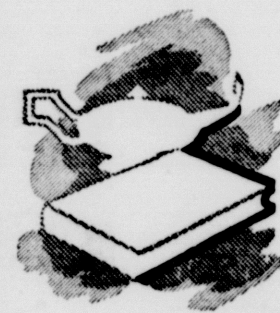

As soon as it was dark T. Set G. Dunn of Canistota, N. Y., and T. Set William Widenor of Logansport, Ind., hung several kettles and tin pans on a wire and strung it across the street.

They tied a cord to the wire and passed it down into their shelter in the basement of a German home. When comfortably settled for the night, they perked the cord, causing the kettles and tin pans to jangle. The Jerries opened up immediately, firing hundreds of machine-gun bullets at the sound.

Taking turns sleeping, the two soldiers alternated at pulling the cord. Each time the enemy responded with fierce firing. In the morning, all concerned were tired and sleepy—but the Germans had spent all night firing down an empty street.

They say a Jap fights hardest when he's cornered. We've got Japan cornered... but the fight is still hard, still costly. Every bond you buy in the Sixth War Loan Drive is your way of saluting the brave men fighting a tough, brutal enemy in the South Pacific. And it costs billions every month to keep the never-ending stream of B-29 Superfortresses, amphibious tanks, bulldozers, high octane gasoline and oil flowing to the Pacific war front. So long as a single Jap faces our men on the field of battle, our duty at home is clear: we must keep on buying War Bonds. You MUST invest in at least one extra hundred dollar bond in the "get Japan" Drive—the Sixth!
